- With a $600 million budget shortfall this year, Oklahoma legislators have many tough decisions to make. But one decision should be easy: halting a tax cut that was never meant to take effect in these conditions.
- The tax cut was only supposed to kick in if revenues are growing, but a badly written bill from last year is triggering a tax cut when the economy is faltering and Oklahoma is looking at even more cuts to schools.
- How can lawmakers justify yet another tax cut when teacher pay is almost the lowest in the nation and per pupil state aid for schools has been slashed 24 percent after inflation since 2008?
- TELL Oklahoma legislators: Do the moral, responsible thing and halt the tax cut. Balance the budget without cutting investments in our children.
